Would you like to be a billionaire?
What would it be like if you had a prosperity consciousness?

Steven and Chutisa Bowman are doing it!

They are facilitating others to create prosperity consciousness with ease, joy, and glory.

They will be presenting two workshops in California in November, as well as meeting with businesses and individuals interested in connecting with them and their work, to share ways they could potentially connect

You now have the opportunity to do just that!

Yes, Gary Douglas, the guy that created this weird and wacky stuff we call Access, is facilitating the basic classes, Foundation and Level 1, next month, and you're invited.

This is the first time he has done this in the U.S. since January 2005, and who knows when he will have time to do it again?

The classes are offered in Oxnard, CA, 90 minutes north of Los Angeles and 30 minutes south of Santa Barbara. (details about how to get there) Hotel phone number.

The dates are Saturday through Tuesday, November 10-13. You will wish to arrive the night before, and might prefer to plan not to leave until Wednesday as the classes can run late when we're following the energy.

Make no mistake, these will not be just any Access classes, as Gary is not only facilitating the many people in the class, but he's also rewriting the book at the same time.

So what would it take for you to get it straight from the horse's mouth? Just boogie on over to the website (www.accessconsciousness.com) and sign up for Foundation with Gary Douglas (founder) and Level One.

And don't book your flights yet! Be sure to read elsewhere in this newsletter about the Creating your Access Business, from Extrapolation to Creation, which immediately follows Gary's classes. It's offered in the same hotel for your travelling convenience. How does it get even better than that?

If you'd like to sample a prior version of this class, check out on the website. It was a dynamite class!

What's preventing you from being a billionaire?

By Chutisa and Steven Bowman
Authors of Conscious Leadership-the Key to Success, and Prosperity Consciousness: Leading Yourself to Money with Consciousness

What is preventing you from succeeding financially and having abundance and wealth in your life? Have you ever seriously asked yourself the question, "How is it that I am not abundantly rich yet?"

Is your answer focused around the belief that being a billionaire is not a possibility, and that becoming filthy rich is not achievable? If this is the case, you are creating you as the source of limitation and not you as the awareness of what is possible. Is it possible that you are not being aware of the infinite possibilities?

Most people don't believe they can become billionaires. And they're right, of course. If you don't believe you can become rich, you certainly won't become rich.

Every limitation, every scantiness, and every insufficiency that is happening in your life is coming out of your head by what you are thinking, or coming out of your mouth by what you are saying.

Are you aware of the financial sob stories

The Bowmans' class, From Extrapolation to Creation will be held in the same place. You can register for all these classes at www.accessconsciousness.com.

What if they gave a recession and nobody came?

What if we all lived from interesting point of view?

By Dr. Kacie Crisp

Have you ever notice how the media creates events, which then feed upon themselves and create the very disasters they're warning us about? When Howard Dean started looking too successful in the last election, for example, both Time and Newsweek wrote muck-raking articles about him and featured them on their covers in the same week.

The top of the news lately is the mortgage mess and home repossessions.

What if we used an Access tool to deal with this? What if instead of these stories being new, news, factual, or "true," we considered them to be just "an interesting point of view"?

Yes, that little tool-Interesting point of view-is the ticket to freedom for us, no matter WHAT anyone else around us is saying. Why is that? Because using interesting point of view for everything we hear allows us to be free. Otherwise we find ourselves aligning and agreeing, or resisting and reacting, to whatever we hear. When we align and agree OR resist and react to anything, can we have freedom? Or are we at the mercy of the opinions of those we support or oppose?

And consider this. Is any part of what's reported in the media a question? (As in, What would it take to turn this around? How could we make this situation work so that people could keep their homes?) I haven't heard many questions-mostly gloom and doom proclamations, all of which are statements.

If we make a statement that something, anything, is so, can anything else enter our universe? If we state the doom and gloom is true, it will be true. And the more of us that buy this point of view, the worse it will get.

and the various barriers that you have created to keep you from having abundance? Your financial sob story about your relationship with money is the central focal point for how you create your entire life, and it is the most significant and most important thing in your life. It is how you shape your experience of life and your deepest feelings about yourself and others.

Your story is how you make everything the same, because that is just how it is. If you keep living by your story, nothing ever changes in your life. When you are so dedicated to the story of your life, you destroy the capacity to have the power of manipulation, chaos and the infinite creation of money.

If your story is constructed and based on scarcity and lack, you will draw very limited amounts of money to you. If you do have money, you will be unable to enjoy and celebrate it.

Are you aware that you may live in fear of scarcity and lack because your story has led you to accept as true that what you want, you cannot get? And if you get it, you can lose it.

You will shut off your awareness if you have a financial sob story based on the lie of scarcity. You will create limitations that will not allow you to expand into what else is possible.

Are you aware that your story is how you define you? Are you willing to acknowledge that your greatest limitation is your attachment to your story? You love your story so much that you will define and limit you based on that story. The story justifies everything in your life.

So, if you are not a billionaire yet, are you willing to acknowledge that you are not choosing to be it?

Some of you may be thinking that you want to be rich and that you have been doing everything you can. Nonetheless you are still not rich yet. If this is the case, are you aware that there might be a story that you have created which doesn't allow you to believe that you can obtain abundant money? If you are not aware of that story, more obstacles will continue to show up in your every day life.

What limiting belief do you function from in life that has created your financial destiny and financial world? What is your financial sob story that you have created as your life?

People have many different stories about money that prevents them from being abundantly rich. Some of the more common

How about it? Would you like to ask a question? Would you like to create a different point of view? How about a different reality? How about one that has nothing to do with recession? What would it take for enough of us to choose this to turn these predictions on their head? How could it get even better than that?

Dr. Kacie Crisp facilitates Access wherever in the world she's invited, edits this newsletter, and does whatever she can find that will expand consciousness.

Would you like to use consciousness in business?

What would it be like if consciousness were used in business? Does that sound like an oxymoron to you? If it does, then you'll wish to be sure to take advantage of an opportunity to turn your business outlook and income upside down which is coming soon to the US.

Steve and Chutisa Bowman, best selling business authors from Australia, are among the many amazing gifted talented awesome people who are using Access tools to transform their lives and their world.

The experience in the business world that they come to Access with is phenomenal. Steve has 11 years experience as a CEO. Between the two of them, they have 30 years experience in the corporate world, and they have worked with the CEOs and/or boards of most of the blue chip companies in Australia. So when they talk about using the tools of consciousness in business, they know what they're talking about.

They have so impressed the Australian government that they gave them a grant to export this amazing knowledge and technology of creation to the US, the UK, and Asia (and anywhere else we could find an invitation for them-anyone interested? email me!).

The Bowmans' next stop in the U.S. is November, when a number of great events are planned.

For those interested in incorporating Access into your business in any way, Creating your Access Business, from Extrapolation to Creation in Oxnard (outside Los Angeles) is a great opportunity to spend two days with these amazing folks in a boardroom-coaching type setting. What's keeping you stuck from creating a business doing what you love most? Wouldn't you like to be free of it now?

ones are:

- ≈ There is only so much of the millionaire pie to go around.
- ≈ Rich people are greedy.
- ≈ You need money to make money.
- ≈ To make money I have to have a great job with high salary.
- ≈ I don't have enough money to plan with.
- ≈ It's too late in my life, I don't know what to do.
- ≈ If I invest, the market will go down for sure.
- ≈ Finances are too complicated.

Are you truly choosing to be a billionaire? Are you willing to acknowledge that it is your choice up to now to not be abundantly rich? It is your choice to be limited and finite.

It is essential you become aware of how your story has gotten you exactly where you are right now. Are you willing to acknowledge that you must have a story that is based on scarcity paradigm as an underlying assumption, since you do not have obscene amounts of money?

Once you are aware of how much your daily experiences are influenced by your story, it is imperative to observe these points of view. Be prepared to destroy and uncreate those points of view that are limiting you.

If you are choosing to be a billionaire, you have to be willing to let go of your financial sob story. Choose to perceive, know, be, and receive that there is infinite possibility you can be a billionaire. Otherwise, you are just creating more limitation.

Using Access Tools in Sales: a Different Point of View

By Chrissie Shirley

Are you tired of closing the sale and having to constantly search for new business?

What if "closing the sale" were a misnomer? Don't you think it's funny that all of those who have been working in the area of sales have been taught that you must go for the "close"? What if we started looking at how we can facilitate the sale and continue business by keeping the sale "open"? What that would look like?

What if the sale had just begun when the person signed on the dotted line? Many of you know what I'm talking about. What if we brought more consciousness and awareness to what you may already be doing?

Conclusions and expectations kill the sale. Have you already noticed if you ever walk in the door with the expectation that someone who has already phoned you and said they are interested in your product is not necessarily going to purchase from you that the sale disappears? Why is that?

In Access, what we say is that anytime you come to a conclusion about something, you have stopped the energy. So in order to keep the energy moving, what you do is ask questions.

What People are Saying about the Bowmans

By Jan Silk

The class was way cool! Steven and Chutisa have a way of facilitating that is uniquely their own. By using the business world as the canvas on which to draw their illustrations of how living as the question can create a new reality, they opened up a world of possibility for the participants in a way that was simple and easy for participants to receive.

Steven is so bubbly and enthusiastic - like a puppy with a new toy - that people just cannot retain their seriousness or trauma and drama around him. He fills the room with his joy of living.

Chutisa is so elegant and gentle with her questions that you don't realize you have been drawn into looking from another point of view until all of a sudden you notice you have said something silly!

Then she invites you to destroy and uncreate that with such allowance and caring that you just can't say "No". Both of them demonstrated a generosity of spirit which is truly inspiring. They really, really desire you to be happy and wealthy and living a joyful, easy life. How does it get any better than this?

Several people have commented to me how their lives have been transformed by that class with the Bowmans.

One lady said that she realized that she had been creating separation in her relationship and justifying her "no choice" life. She has been able to uncreate and destroy that relationship and now she has a new possibility for something greater to show up.

Another lady said she has never understood what generosity of spirit truly was until this class. She had always thought it had to do with giving things to people and getting nothing back. She can now see that it is about gratitude and allowance and not about the money. Her world has expanded unbelievably from that awareness.

I would recommend this class to anyone who is asking for more in their lives. Whatever you would like to create for yourself and your life, the tools for functioning from prosperity

As an example, imagine you are working in real estate and you get an invitation to list a property. What I suggest you do is walk up to the door, leaving your listing presentation in the car, and introduce yourself, with no thought in your mind of what you are going to say. Have you ever noticed that if you know what you are going to say, you are not spontaneous, and you often miss out on possibilities as they present themselves because you already have a preconceived idea of what you are going to talk about?

If you let go of everything you have decided about what is going to happen, you can be totally present with these people, and you can have a lot of fun. As the conversation progresses you will know when the right time is to ask if they would like to list with you (or see your presentation if that be the case). Because you haven't taken it in with you, you are showing the prospective clients that you do not expect to get the listing.

Once we have the listing in the bag, what's next? To keep the energy moving, I suggest instead of saying "Great, I have this great new listing," you say "How does it get any better than this?" And, "What else is possible?" When you ask a question you open up the energy. You are inviting the abundant universe to bring you possibilities that you can't even think of.

Questions you can ask are,

- "I wonder who would like to own this property?"
- "I wonder how many people would like to own this house?"
- "What would it take to sell this house for a price that is way more than what I think is possible?"
- "What would it take for the value of this house to increase?"
- "Who are the people I can talk to who will help me find some buyers?"
- "Who else shall I talk to?"
- "What else is possible?"
- "What are the infinite possibilities of selling this house with ease?"

Do you get the picture? What we are doing is talking to the unlimited universe. We don't answer our own questions and we keep asking for what else is possible.

I often find that sales people who are selling on commission will often start spending the commission in their heads before the sale is confirmed. Have you noticed that when you do that often times the sale will "fall over"? What I recommend, when you have a contract for purchase, (using the real estate sales as an example) is that you do not allow yourself to start working out how much money you are going to get from the sale.

In fact, what I recommend you do is to keep on creating more sales. "What else can I create?" "What else can I add to my life that will make me happy beyond my wildest dreams?" Did you know that you love to be busy, and that you love having too much to do? When you have too many listings on your books and too many contracts to follow through, then you will be happy!

What happens when you do stop the sale by working out the commission in your head? We are the creators of everything that happens in our lives, so if a sale falls over, "How did I create this?" is a good question to ask. I suggest that you also celebrate that it fell over as well. Why would you wish to do that, you might ask. Because when you go "Oh woe is me, this person is a faggot, they have just cancelled their contract," you are sending the vibration out to the world that nothing is working for you. And guess what you will create more of? That nothing is working for you!

So, instead, you could go, "I wonder what else is possible now, and I wonder if someone else is going to show up who will truly love this house and pay even more money for it?" Do you perceive that that will create more possibilities?

What if entities could help you and your business thrive despite winter storms?

By Julie Tuton

This February I traveled to Philadelphia as a vendor at a large American Craft trade show. February is not exactly the best time of year to be traveling to the Northeast due to winter storms, yet this is where the show location has been for years. This year there were severe weather complications, but somehow I managed to arrive on time, set up my booth and get ready for the buyers. How does it get better than that?

The first 2 days of the show were very quiet. I was using the Access tools to pull energy through my products and send trickles out to all the people who'd like to own them that don't know it yet. The other artists were concluding that the buyers had been detained and deterred by the storm, and that it would just be an "off" show. That didn't work for me!

I went back to my hotel room and asked lots of questions. Clearing tons of considerations, and all the entities etc. I realized that there were still a lot of entities in my room. I asked if they required something from me or if they were there to help me. Amazingly, they were there to help. I suddenly had an idea to ask them put a thought into all the buyers' heads, "I need to place an order with Arcadian Design!"

The next day as soon as the show opened I had a steady stream of buyers coming by my booth, all saying, "I need to place an order with you." Pretty much all morning through around 1:30pm I was busy writing orders, laughing all the way. That morning I wrote more business than the first 2 days combined. The other vendors were shocked. They had another "slow" day.

Another Access Tool: What words are you using?

What are you creating with what you're saying?

By Chrissie Shirley

Are you getting the picture that in Access we have the point of view that everything is energy? So if everything is energy, everything we say has a vibration, everything we think has a vibration, and we are creating what we think and say!

One of things we suggest you become aware of is some of the words you are using. For example, if you say "I want to sell more products, I want more customers," you are really saying "I lack of selling, and I lack customers"! Whoa! If we knew that the word "want" means "to lack," would we be using it?

Another word which creates less than, the word "need." If you are saying, "I need to sell a house, because I need the money," you are creating the opposite. The word "need" creates "greed," and I highly suggest you find another way to say this.

What you could say is, "What would it take to have more customers?" or "I wonder where I could find more customers?" Is it a statement to say "I want to sell more"? Do you perceive that that will stop the energy rather create what you would like to create?

There are other words you may like to eliminate from your vocabulary - Why, Try, Need, Want, But and Never. When I first started using the "tools" of Access, I wrote these down on a piece of paper and put a line through them and placed it on the fridge. I worked consciously to eliminate these words from what I was saying. I noticed that it does create a more positive vibration.

Ask for what you would like. There is a saying in Access that we don't ask for nearly enough. We have a certain idea of what we think is possible and that is all we ask for. What if you could ask for way more than what you perceive is possible? What if we could ask for multiple sales? What if we could ask for sales to come in ways that we cannot even consider possible?

Would you like to consider the possibility that if you ask for way more than you have been asking for that things may come to you from places that you never expected? And would that be so much fun? Don't we just love it, when someone rings up out of the blue and says that they have heard about you and would love you to assist them with what you do? Isn't that the creation that gives us so much excitement and variety?

I wonder what it would be like for us to ask for way more than what we think is possible? I wonder how many people I will meet today who would like to know more about what I do? I wonder how many people I will talk to today who ask me questions, and are interested in me doing some work for them? These are questions we can ask.

Chrissie Shirley wonders, What are the infinite possibilities of me doing sales training for companies, for people one on one, and for groups of people who would like to learn how to sell way more than they are selling at the moment with more ease and fun and more infinite possibilities?

What if questions were asked in government?

By Adrienne Furness

Working for a government department--what does that bring up for you?

For me, when I started some months ago, I resisted it. Resisted the human-ness, the conversations that went on, the slowness. It took huge amounts of effort to slow myself down to their pace. The first project manager I worked for gave me one task at a time. How was I going to look busy all day with one task? What's right about this I hadn't got yet? And then an Access friend said "So what change could I create there, being the humanoid I was?" Duh!

So I asked for all the humanoids to show up and for new possibilities. I jumped into some different projects and began to contribute to what was going on.

And what is going on now? Huge change! From the "Corporate Box," the view is spectacular. For a change from previous projects, this project went out to the different business divisions. Instead of saying, "You are going to do your forecasting, demand planning and budgets like this," this project asked, "So what are you doing and what do you use to do it? And how can we assist you to do it better?"

It opened doors! Everyone was only too willing to share information and show what they did, and they welcomed new ideas.

As we went on, we saw that if this tool could produce this information to that division, it would save them time because they wouldn't have to recreate it.

I'd worked on a similar project in NZ, so I was aware of the target of what was to be achieved, ultimately. I used an Access tool of pulling what I knew would happen in the future into the present (not that they are all aware of that), and it's pulling together.

Am I officially the project manager? No. Does that matter? No.

The barriers are all falling down around what was previously engulfing each division, what went on and the information that was held so tight. We have had people sit around the table from all divisions and talk to each other about how they can work together more efficiently, what one requires of another to do what they have to do, and when it is required by, instead of sitting across the table challenging and defending any point of view as right. To watch how people are "working together" rather than in isolation and all contributing to the whole is wonderful to be part of. Is this government department changing? Hugely. What are the infinite possibilities of that change?

So it doesn't matter where you are, or what you do, you can create change and transformation and greater consciousness. You can be the humanoid you truly are, and where did it all start? Oh yes, with a question.

Are you curious about how the Access tools might work in your life? Would you like to have a personalized consultation with a licensed Access learning facilitator at no cost? Now you can! This month only, you can select a facilitator from the website, call them, and they will speak to you for 10 minutes at no cost to you! AND if your question will take longer than that, the choice to continue at their regular rate is entirely up to you. They will inform you BEFORE any charge is incurred. How does it get any better than that?

NOTE: Learning facilitators are participating in this program on a voluntary basis. If you reach one who cannot participate for some reason, feel free to email Dr. Crisp at drlight@comcast.net for names of facilitators who are more available.
